POETRY. .

'Building on the Sand. Tis well to woo, 'tis well to wed, For so the world has done Since myrtles grew, and roses blew, And morning brought the sun.

But have a care ye young and fair-Besure ye pledge with truth, Be certain that your love will wear Beyond the days of youth.

For if yo give not heart for heart, As well as hand for hand, You'll find you've played the unwise part, And "built upon the sand." "Tis well to save, 'tis well to have

A goodly store of gold. And hold enough of the shining stuff, For charity is cold. But place not all your hopes and trust

In what the deep mine brings; We cannot live on yellow dust, Unmixed with purer things.

And he who piles up wealth alone, Will often have to stand Beside his coffer chest, and own 'Tis "built upon the sand."

'Tis good to speak in kindly guise, And soothe where'er we can; Fair speech should-bind the human mind, And love link man to man.

But stay not at gentle words, Let deeds with language dwell, The one who pities starving birds, Should scatter crumbs as well.

The mercy that is warm and true, Must lend a helping hand; For these who talk, yet fail to do, But "build upon the sand."

MISCELLANY.

THE NEW EMPEROR OF RUSSIA .-- An American gentleman writes in these terms to a friend in New York city, largely interested in steam machinery: "Do not believe that the Emperor Alexander is of any softer material than his father Nicholas, or that he will let England and France off before he has taken the starch out of them. He has either repeated, or very soon will repeat plainly, the offer his father made to our government. He will give the United States the whole of Russian America (which carries with it immense whale fisheries, and the unlimited control of the Pacific coast) for the privilege of buying and fitting steam-ships and privateers in our ports. As it is known in Russia that Euglish agents have been permitted to recruit for the Crimean army in New York, the allies cannot complain if the American cabinet accept this fine offer. In case it does thirty millions of dollars will be spent among our laborers and mechanics by the Russians, and our clipper-built ships will find a prompt market. Alexander speaks English like one born to it, and keeps the run of American papers with surprising accuracy. Soon after his accession, he said to a party of Americans who were presented to him: "Our countries have at heart one been not provided in the property of the received land for military services, are received pay in money for their services, are received pay in money for their services, are claims against the U. S. Government, become perfectly acquainted with all the minute rules and practice of that Department, and are well who have the Commissioner of Pensions. We will attend promptly to all claims cutrusted to us. As three hundred thousand persons are cutracy. SLAVERY IN NEBRASKA.—A Kansas cor-respondent of the St. Louis Republican makes the following statements:

"The question of slavery in Nebraska, South of the Platte, has already begun to be discussed in a calm and enlightened way. Many of the settlers in that part of the Territory are from the Southern States, and some have their servants with them .-They are pleased with the country-they would like to cultivate their portion of it in their own way; and they are vigorously determined to test the question at the ballot box, whether or not they shall be allowed to retain their property in their new home. They believe the region South of the Platte to be admirably adapted to slave labor, and the Platte river ought in reality to have been the boundary line between Kansas and Nebraska. The people of Northwestern Missouri, too, are aroused on this question, and will, doubtless, settle in Southern Nebraska in large numbers. . Whether, then, the Territory adopts the institution of slavery or not, it is likely to receive large accessions of population from all parts of the Union.
